GERMANS ACTIVE.

Interned Sailors at Newport Build Novel Village.

HAVE INGENIOUS DIVERSIONS.

Miniature Zeppelin Dropping Bombs on England One of Former Sea Raiders' Amusements—Party Finds Everything Spick and Span.

Norfolk, Va.—Many people would be surprised to learn that in neutral America a German Zeppelin is flying around dropping bombs on English soil, or at least English cliffs, and being in return bombarded by anti-air craft guns.

Time hangs heavy on the hands of the crew of the interned cruiser Eitel Friedrich, which is tied up at the navy yard here. Since the sailors took to escaping last summer the restrictions have been rigidly enforced, and any one sailing past the big boat before and since would be struck by the change in the appearance of the brass and wood work, which is now immaculately polished and scraped in an effort to kill time. German sailors can do many wonderful things, but even they are hard put to it to invent occupations for hundreds of active men, and Commander Thierichens asked the representative of a society in New York last autumn to send Christmas presents of games and puzzles and indoor sports rather than handkerchiefs and cakes and clothing. And lately a new diversion has been attempted.

From the cliffs of Dover have been constructed at one end of the big dining saloon. They have been built in accurate imitation of the real ones and colored white with salt. On top is a lighthouse with air guns mounted at the base. At the farther end of the room rises a miniature Zeppelin numbered 1820, which flies around the room by electricity several times. It hovers for a moment over the lighthouse, drops several miniature bombs and makes its escape while the guns go off automatically and bombard the enemy craft with missiles.

After hearing of these performances a correspondent and some friends visited the German encampment. Landing at the navy yard, they passed the huge drydocks in which ships of tremendous tonnage looked like pygmies, and soon their attention was called to a sturdy, high bow ship, flying the fisheries flag. Her sides looked of enormous strength, being rounded away from a sharp bow in an unusual way. This was the famous Roosevelt. Peary's arctic ship, now in government employment to protect the seal fisheries.

One of the most interesting sights at Norfolk is the model village built by the German sailors. At first sight the village resembled an arid waste of slag heaps, with piles of condemned material scattered all over, clinders, beaten earth and rubbish everywhere—not a tree, not a spear of grass, the scene of desolation. As they advanced they saw a pygmy village built in close formation—curious little houses in miniature yards, carved and painted in fantastic ways. This is the village the interned sailors are building out of waste material.

Before visiting it they went aboard the Eitel Friedrich, which is tied up at the dock and on which the sailors of both cruisers are now living.

As they were leaving the boat Captain Thierichens of the Kronprinz Wilhelm joined them and escorted them to the village. Everything was found in spick and span shape, and resemblances of home scenes were many.

New from the Court of Fashion

Of special interest to those now purchasing Easter Apparel :: ::

This is an extraordinary season in some respects.

We have seen seasons when there seemed to be one predominant style feature. But this is one of the very few seasons in which long or short coats, loose coats or fitted coats have been introduced and accepted. This diversity is noticeable in all the features of the fashions—collars, bouffant bustles and pannieres in dresses, leg-of-mutton sleeves or plain tight sleeves, gauntlet cuffs, shoulder capes and so on.

It affords every woman the opportunity as never before to choose HER particular style of suit or coat. Always alive to our customers best interests we have selected liberally and carefully from the best manufacturers' lines.

Last minute styles are arriving each day to augment our already large selection thus insuring easy choosing.
